Strategic plans that do not gather dust!

Almost every organization has a strategic plan. Does it get used? In many cases the plan fulfills a donor requirement. How can we go beyond this to develop plans that are actually implemented?

At NDAS we believe the answer lies in method of development and ownership of the end-product.

We do not believe organizations should have outsiders develop their strategic plans. We believe in facilitation of strategic plan development.

Our strategic plan facilitation process consists of two steps:

Training in strategic planning and strategic management, and
Strategic Plan development

We aim to combine our expertise and experience in strategic planning methods and tools with the clients knowledge and passion for their work. The end product is technically sound documents that carry the passion of their owners—strategic plans that do not gather dust!

The basis for our work..

We have supported strategic planning processes at various levels from local to regional and international. While we can quickly put together impressive strategic plans, we do not adopt this approach. Instead, we focus on the client using the right tools to understand the challenges and opportunities and map a way forward that they are most convinced with.

We work with organizational teams to ensure there is broad ownership of the strategic plan.

The Training

We provide training as a precursor to strategic planning to achieve several objectives:

Ensure everyone understands why strategic planning is necessary and how the plan is used

Build familiarity with strategic planning tools so that 'thinking time' is invested in thinking and not tools

Identify and tease out soft issues that may not end up in the strategic plan but are critical for implementation and understanding internal dynamics.

Our training consists of four modules:

- Introduction to strategic planning and management
- Strategy and strategic Measurement
- Organisational culture and leadership
- Strategic Planning process

The Strategic Planning and Management Course is delivered over 2 days.

Strategic Planning

We adjust the strategic planning process to suit the needs of different organizations.

We use a variety of tools to challenge our clients and ensure that they come up with a sound strategic plan that is supported by an operational plan, budget, clear timelines and accountabilities.
